SURGICAL and Mechanical Dentist, respectfully begs leave to inform the inhabitants of Sydney, that he has resumed the practice of his profession at 561, George-street, where he may be consulted daily from 10 till 4.
Mr H. trusts that his former successful practice of six years will render it unnecessary to expatiate on his ability to attend to any case entrusted to his care, but hopes that unremitted attention to the interests of his patients will ensure him the support of the Australian public. Mr. H., aware of the fact that many persons are deterred from seeking the advice of a dentist through fear of high charges, thinks it expedient to publish a list of his professional fees:—

TO GOOD MARKS.

THAT there is no trade in such general request as the clothing, which has been so much conducted upon the principles of Credit, at the expense generally of the honest portion of the community, none knowing anything of the injustice of the system can doubt, which is supported by compelling the honest man to pay as much over and above the real value of his goods as will cover the losses to which the Tailor becomes liable through the defalcation of dishonest debtors. The subscriber therefore solicits the attention of all who intend to pay for their Clothes, to the following important advantage of this Establishment. After ordering Clothes, should the purchaser not be satisfied with either the cloth, the workmanship, or the fit, he will not be expected to take them.

Currents of the Ocean.—The bottle containing this paper was thrown from H.B.M. ship Erebus, 8 p. m, 4th April, 1842, in lat. 53 59 south, and long. 60 47 west. Whoever may find it, is requested to forward the paper to the Secretary of the Admiralty, London, with the date, together with a notice of the latitude and longitude where found. James Ross, Captain. Terror in company. [The foregoing paper was picked up at Cape Liptrap, on this coast, about the middle of September last, apparently only a few days on the beach. The figures and words marked by us in italics were in darker ink than the document itself, and must have been filled in by the Captain (whose signature is appended,) a few minutes before committing it to the ocean. The writing appears as fresh as if just written.—Ed. Port Phillip Herald.

Important to Masters of Ships.—In the case which lately came before the Sydney Police Office, "Reginae. Williamson," the Commander of the schooner Governor, the result of which was that the Bench fined the Captain £32, for having 32 lbs. weight of gunpowder on board contrary to the Harbour Regulations. His Excellency the Governor has graciously mitigated the fine to £8, in consequence of the recommendation of the Bench to his merciful consideration under the circumstances. We hope in future that directions will be given to pilots boarding ships in this harbour, to ask the captains certain questions, which will put them on their guard as to infringements of the Harbour Regulations, which many a master of a ship may unwittingly neglect. At present it is the custom to place in the cabin a copy of the Harbour Regulations; but it is as absurd to expect that a captain of a ship in the excitement of the first few hours of his arrival should peruse a document as large as a newspaper, as it is unjust to inflict summary and heavy penalties for non-observance of such regulations within twelve hours of his coming to an anchor.

English Shipping.—The Eleanor was advertised to sail for Sydney positively on the 15th July. The Royal George was advertised to sail for Sydney on the 1st September, and the General Hewitt on the 1st October. The Enmore was to sail for New Zealand (port not mentioned) on the 10th August. The Elizabeth Thompson sailed from Liverpool for Port Phillip on the 5th July. The St. George, for Sydney, and the Joseph Albino, for Adelaide, sailed from Gravesend on the 4th July. The Sarah Birkett, from Sydney, 27th February, was in the Downs on the 1st July. The Royal Archer, from Liverpool, sailed for Hobart Town on the 27th June. The Gunga, 279, Bowman, was loading at Liverpool, for Adelaide.

The Equestrian, hired convict ship, left her moorings opposite the Royal Arsenal yesterday, and was towed down the river, and will proceed direct for New South Wales. The convict guard was selected, of sufficient strength, from the 11th Regiment, and the detachment of Captain Turner's company of the Royal Artillery did not go on board. It is expected the whole of the company, with the addition of a collar-maker, shoeing-smith, and wheeler, will proceed in a vessel expected down the river next week direct for New Zealand, where the company will be stationed —Times, July 7.

The cargo of the Coolangatta consists of 60 tons and 134 cases kowrie gum, 19 casks black oil, and 30 planks. The Robert Pulsford, from Sydney, and H. M. S. Osprey, were going into Auckland as the Coolangatta left. The latter saw a whaling barque off Howe's Island on Thursday last, with her boats lowered after whales.

The cargo of the Phœbe comprises 297 bags flour, 175 bags wheat, 5 casks butter, 35 cases tobacco, &c. She spoke nothing on the passage.

The Thomas Lowry being the Post-office packet for July, her arrival was anxiously looked for, as she was known to be one of our fastest vessels. She has been 121 days on the passage, which may be considered a short one, considering what Captain Graham had to contend with. On the 10th September off the Cape of Good Hope, they encountered a heavy gale of wind, which continued some days, in which she carried away her rudder, stove in the after-cabin deadlights, and filled the cuddy with water. The gale continued for two days, but on the fourth, a temporary rudder was shipped, which, by the assistance of the after-sails, has brought them on to Sydney. Upon making Cape Lewin contrary winds prevailed, and she has been twenty-three days from that place. She has spoken no vessels on the passage connected with these colonies. The mail by her comprises seventeen large bags.

LATER ENGLISH NEWS.

We received yesterday via Bombay and Adelaide, London newspapers to the 7th July, from which we have given copious extracts in another part of the Herald.

As this is only two days later than had been received previously, there is no political news of importance; but the extracts we have given will be found interesting.

Trade continued brisk, and there was no doubt that the July sales would realize prices quite equal to those of May, and there was the probability of an advance. T. and H. Littlesale's circular of July 5th, says "the same steady demand for wool continues, which has prevailed for some months, and the consumption for some descriptions has exceeded the supply. * * * * * The quantity of colonial wool advertised for public sale is large, which has just commenced, with every prospect of being fully supported." There was every prospect of a good harvest, and the bullion in the Bank of England was nearly seventeen millions. Consols closed on the 7th at 99¼.

The rage for railway speculations appeared to be rather on the increase than otherwise. There is scarcely a city in Europe of any note, to which it is not intended to construct railroads, and a most magnificent scheme for railroads in India had been formed.

Mr. Fitzroy Kelly had been appointed Solicitor-General.

We see nothing respecting the appointment of Sir W. Napier as Commander of the Forces in this colony, and we are inclined to think that it has no foundation, except in the inventive brain of one of our Hobart Town contemporaries, who makes a point of having a little bit of English news by every ship, which no one else can possibly have received.

On Friday last, July 4th, Mr. Hope said it was the intention of government to bring in a bill to regulate the disposal of the unsold land in New South Wales.

The Royal Assent was given by commission, on the 30th June, to the Maynooth Endowment Bill.

The packet only brings papers to the 2nd July.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

Our files of Adelaide papers to the 18th October come to hand yesterday. The most euthusiastic accounts of the produce of the mines continue to appear in the papers.

Major Robe had arrived in the East India Company's sloop Elphinstone, as Lieutenant-Governor of South Australia. The announcement of this appointment in the Government Gazette is as follows:—

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Adelaide, Oct. 16, 1845.

His Excellency the Governor directs it to be notified that Her Majesty has been graciously pleased to appoint Brevet-Major Robe, of the 87th Royal Irish Fusileers, to be Lieutenant-Governor of her Majesty's Province of South Australia.

By His Excellency's command,
A. M. MUNDY,
Colonial Secretary.

It would appear from this that Major Robe does not supersede Governor Grey, but is appointed his deputy, to have charge of the government while Governor Grey proceeds to New Zealand, to which place he was about to proceed in the Elphinstone Major Robe, who was Military Secretary at Gibraltar when he received the appointment, arrived in India by the overland route and was forwarded on by the Indian Government who had express orders on the subject.

We have been compelled by press of other matter to omit until to-morrow further notice of the contents of the papers before us.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

Tuesday.

The Speaker took the chair at the usual hour.

MESSAGES FROM THE GOVERNOR.

A messenger from the Governor having been announced, the Private Secretary was introduced, who presented the two following messages from His Excellency:—

Message from His Excellency the Governor, to the Legislative Council, replying to an Address from the Council, dated the 24th October, 1845, wherein His Excellency was requested to place upon the Estimates for 1846, the sum of £9000 towards the erection and completion of Lighthouses in Bass's Straits, and to make the necessary arrangements with the Government of Van Diemen's Land, for obtaining a supply of convict labour to carry on the work.

Gentlemen,—I will place on the Estimates for 1846, the sum of £9000, and take such other preliminary measures as may be in my power, in order to prepare for the erection of Lighthouses in Bass's Straits; and I will also put myself in communication with the Lieutenant Governor of Van Diemen's Land on this important subject.

I feel it right, however, to observe, that it was on a late occasion pointed out by the Secretary of State, to the Governor of a neighbouring colony, that the erection of Lighthouses is a matter in which the commerce of the empire, and indeed that of all nations, is concerned, and that consequently the position of them ought not to be definitely fixed, without the concurrence of Her Majesty's Government.

GEORGE GIPPS,
Governor.

Government House,
Sydney, 4th November, 1845.

Message from his Excellency the Governor to the Legislative Council, replying to an Address from the Council, wherein his Excellency was requested to allot from Schedule C, of the 5th and 6th Vict, c. 76, £1000 for liquidating the debt now due for building the Synagogue, and towards the erection of a suitable Dwelling House for the Minister of the congregation of Jews in the colony; also, a further sum of £150, as a stipend for such Minister.

Gentlemen,—I regret I do not feel that I have authority to pay any money towards the erection of a Jewish Synagogue, or towards the maintenance of a Minister of the Jewish religion, out of the sum which by Schedule C, of the 5th and 6th Vict. c. 77 is secured to her Majesty for the purposes of Public Worship.

GEORGE GIPPS.
Governor.

Government House,
Sydney, 4th November, 1845.

The above messages having been read, were severally ordered, upon the motion of the COLONIAL SECRETARY, to be printed, and entered on the minutes.

MR. REGISTRAR MANNING.

Mr. LOWE, as Chairman of the Committee appointed to prepare addresses, with reference to the late Registrar of the Supreme Court, brought up the Report of that Committee, and moved that it be printed, and taken into consideration to-morrow (this day).

THE DISTILLATION BILL.

Mr. WENTWORTH said, that he had intended to present a petition from Messrs Abercrombie and Cooper, praying to be severally heard at the bar of the House against the passing of the above Bill, but had forgotten to bring it with him: he should therefore give notice of his intention to present it to-morrow (this day), and at the same time of moving that these gentlemen be heard.

CITY POLICE FUND.

Mr. WENTWORTH moved, pursuant to notice, that an address be presented to his Excellency the Governor, requesting his Excellency to place upon the estimates the sum of £7817 18s. 3d, to be refunded to the Corporation of the city of Sydney, being the amount levied by the Mayor, Aldermen, and Councillors of the city under the 70th section of the 6th Victoria, No. 3, and expended by them under the provisions of that Act, towards the support of the City Police, under the stipulation contained in the petition to this Council of the said Mayor, Aldermen, and Councillors, that this amount be applied to improvements in the city. This motion, he said, ought to have been made by him at a much earlier period of the session, being founded on a petition which was presented by himself to the House on the 17th of December last, in which the civic authorities prayed that the sum which had been raised by assessment on the citizens and expended for police purposes, might be refunded to them. This claim of the Corporation was so obviously just, that he was at a loss to imagine upon what grounds it could be opposed. The Corporation was required by the 70th clause of the Act under which it was established, to levy an assessment for police purposes, and it was provided at the same time that one-half of the expenses should be borne from the general revenue, but although a similar measure was contemplated with regard to the rest of the colony, it had not been acted upon. Under this state of things, the Government, of its own motion, had declared that the operation of law as regards the Corporations of Sydney and Melbourne, would be unjust, and during last session had introduced a Bill to suspend for a year the operation of the before-memtioned 70th clause. A similar measure had been introduced and carried through the House by the Government during the present session; and the introduction of these two Bills were virtual admissions that as the city of Sydney had no more right to pay for the whole of its police than the country districts, so upon the same principle it ought to have restored to it the amount which had been already raised and expended for this purpose under the provisions of a law which had been thrust down the throats of the citizens, in opposition to the most numerously and respectably signed petitions that were ever presented to the colonial legislature. When it was once admitted that a continuance of this levy was unjust, it was hard to see upon what principle the charge which had been made before the passing of the Act alluded to for suspending its operation could be defended, particularly when the Corporation required the sum to be refunded in order to lay it out in the improvement of the city: for he should have thought that even if the citizens had come forward and asked for a grant of £7000 for such a purpose, without establishing such a claim to it as they then had, their demand would have been willingly acceded to by that House. The demand for aid in the drainage and sewerage of the city was, in point of fact, an irresistible one: for no work could be of greater importance than this to the public health, as it was admitted by medical men that the deficiencies of the City in this respect were productive of the most pestilential diseases. If, therefore, the citizens possessed a claim to this aid, apart from the circumstance of their having already received the money among themselves, their demand was obviously the stronger when made, as it was at present, upon the broad ground that they had no more right to pay for the whole of their police than the rest of the colony, and that they had consequently a just claim to have restored to them the funds which they have been constrained to apply in this manner.

Mr. ALLEN seconded the motion.

The COLONIAL SECRETARY said, that before the motion was put to the vote he deemed it his duty to state that he could not give it his assent. The honorable and learned member had adverted to the Corporation Act, as one which had been thrust down the throats of the people, in defiance of numerously and respectably signed petitions; but he for one, as a member of the Government, at the time alluded to, and as one who had taken an active part in passing it into a law, felt bound to say that he had never seen cause to regret that proceeding; from the day of its passing to the present time this Act had worked better and better, and the principle of self-government which is conferred upon the citizens had been carried on in such a manner as to meet the best wishes of its framers. It was in no unfriendly feeling therefore that he felt constrained to vote against this motion; but when it was considered how large a portion of the public funds had been already spent upon Sydney in comparison with the other parts of the colony, he scarcely thought it just that a further sum of so large amount should be appropriated in the same way. The City of Sydney had not only received large aids in the shape of improvement paid for by the public revenue, but had been equally aided and improved by convict labour, and if this motion was acceded to, they could upon no plea of justice resist the claims of Melbourne, Parramatta, Bathurst, and other towns, upon which so little had been spent, to have similar assistance granted to them; so that if the course was once begun, it could not be ended until they had allotted a portion of the public money for the improvement of every town in the colony. The Subsidiary Act which granted aids of £5000 to the Police and City funds, on condition of an equal amount being raised by assessment, had expired; but the citizens were not placed by this in any worse position than before: for although they had to raise the City fund wholly among themselves, they were, on the other hand, relieved from the whole burthen of the police; and, under all circumstances, he did not think that the present was a case in which they ought to vote the amount required of them. Last year there was nothing in the House but complaints of distress and demands for retrenchment; but no sooner was there an appearance of prosperity, than motion after motion was brought forward to force the Government into lavish expenditures. He always thought that the proper duty of a Legislature was to restrict any inclination to extravagance on the part of the Government; but in this antipodean country this, as well as all other things, was reversed. It ought, however, to be remembered that the revenue, although at present so flourishing, was being subjected to an hazardous experiment in the reduction of the spirit duties, which formed its principal support; and great care ought to be taken that in launching into these expenses they did not spend more than they could afford.

Dr. LANG said, that if this had been a mere application for a money grant in aid of the Civic Works, he should, considering the vast importance of the city, have felt bound to support it; but the case was far stronger as it was then presented to their view: for instead of being an appeal to the liberality of the Government, it was an appeal to their sense of justice. It had been intended to subject the whole colony to a similar taxation in support of police, through the medium of the District Councils; but the operation of these bodies having been knocked on the head by the votes of that House, the public had been prevented from having to sustain the burthen; there could be no tangible reason, therefore, for making an exception against Sydney and Melbourne, and the amounts which had been exacted from the latter ought to be returned. The Colonial Secretary had spoken of the benefits derived from Sydney by convict labour, but so far from those benefits being as great as was sought to be made out, he thought it would be very difficult for the Government to make out a case of exculpation for itself, in having done so little for the improvement of the colony while it had so large an amount of this kind of labour at its disposal, and which the British Treasury was ready to aid in the works. It was very proper that, as the revenue increased, this and other claims upon it should be brought forward; and as the position of Melbourne was precisely similar in this respect to the position of Sydney, it was obvious that if the application of the one was favourably entertained, the same result must attend the other.

Mr. WENTWORTH said, in reply, that the way in which the claim had been met by the Colonial Secretary was dangerous: for although Melbourne was unquestionably in the same position as Sydney, and was entitled to a similar piece of justice, this was not the case with many of the other towns or districts which his learned friend had alluded to, as likely to demand similar aids in the event of the present motion being granted. The present claim was founded upon the exactions which had been made under the Incorporation Act, to which exactions no other towns had been subject; and besides this Sydney, and to some extent, Melbourne, possessed another claim to be regarded in a different aspect from the towns in the interior, which was, that they were places of traffic resorted to by numbers not belonging to their ordinary population, Sydney in particular was a place where the inhabitants contributed very largely to the general revenue, and was besides the great commercial emporium of these seas, and the centre to which rogues of all descriptions as well as honest men would invariably bend their course. Upon the same principle the City of London was aided by the general revenue in the support of the police. It was no answer to the application of the citizens to say that they were in no worse a position than before the expiration of the Subsidiary Act, for what they asked for was to be placed in the same position as the rest of their fellow-colonists, and this would not be the case unless the present motion was acceded to. He thought with the honorable and reverend member for Port Phillip, that so far from the City having derived any very great benefit from convict labour, the Government had been very remiss in this particular, considering the ample means which it had at its disposal, and all which had been done was to level a few of the streets and to erect one or two buildings, such as Hyde Park Barracks, which the Government required for its own convenience. He must confess that he was not very sanguine of carrying the present motion, for he must take blame to himself for having brought it forward at so late a period of the session, when many of those who, from a sense of justice, would support it, were absent, while there was a sufficient number present of those who would oppose it. Whatever might be the fate of it, however, he should feel it his duty on the part of the citizens to try the question again during the ensuing session.

The House then divided upon the motion with the following result:—

Majority against the motion 6

WOLLOMBI AND THE MACDONALD RIVER

Dr. LANG, in pursuance of notice moved, "That an Address be presented to his Excellency the Governor, requesting that a sum be placed on the Estimates for 1846, for the salary of a Police Magistrate for the district of Wollombi and the Macdonald River for that year." He urged that such an officer was necessary in this district, especially because the government could not appoint residents in the districts to act as magistrates in sufficient numbers to perform the duties which were required.

Mr. ROBINSON seconded the motion.

Mr. LAMB opposed the motion, on the ground that it was a question for the Executive government, where a police magistrate should be appointed or not, and that it was not for the Council to dictate to the Executive where police magistrates should be appointed.

Dr. NICHOLSON supported the motion, and asserted that it was absolutely necessary that in such a district as that now under consideration a police magistrate should be maintained.

Mr. DARVALL opposed the motion, as did also the ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

After a few words from Dr. LANG, the question was put and the House divided, and there were for the motion 6

THE NEPEAN.

Mr. COWPER, in pursuance of notice, moved, "That an Address be presented to his Excellency the Governor, expressing the opinion of this Council that a Bridge of a suitable and substantial character should be erected, at as early a period as may be convenient, across the Nepean River, either in the locality where the Penrith Punt is now placed, or in any other position in its immediate vicinity, which, upon examination and survey by the proper officers of Government may be considered more eligible; and intimating the willingness of this Council to provide the necessary funds, either from the revenue of the colony, or by a loan to be raised from the funds of the Savings' Bank, if that course be considered the most expedient." The object of the motion, he said, was not so much to effect the object immediately as to bring the matter under the consideration of the Government as well as other public works, so that the Government, when in possession of funds, might proceed to effect such projects as would by all be acknowledged as of great public benefit.

The COLONIAL SECRETARY opposed the motion, on the ground that to erect such a bridge as was proposed over the Nepean would cost some £20,000 or £30,000; and although he was favourable to the works which were proposed, yet he thought that it would be too much to pledge the Government to such an expenditure as was now proposed.

Mr. ROBINSON supported the motion. He had and he would support all motions for improvements, and he should be glad that motions were brought forward for similar purposes for Windsor and Bathurst, and other localities which had already been more than once mentioned.

Mr. WENTWORTH suggested that it would be well for his honorable friend the member for Cumberland to withdraw this motion for the present; although he did not believe that there would be any necessity for such an expenditure as the sum mentioned by the Colonial Secretary, as from adopting some one of the plans suggested by the witnesses who had been examined, an expenditure of £1500 or £3000 would be sufficient for all the purposes of a bridge over the Nepean.

Mr. LOWE opposed the motion, as he had—and as he would—oppose every motion which was brought forward in this way for a local expenditure.

Mr. COWPER withdrew the motion by permission of the House.

DEPASTURING LICENSES.

Mr. COWPER, in pursuance of notice, moved, "That an Address be presented to His Excellency the Governor, requesting that His Excellency will be pleased to cause to be laid upon the table of this House a Return of all Depasturing Licenses in the several districts of the Commissioners of Crown Lands beyond the boundaries of location; distinguishing the names of the occupiers, and the amount paid for such Licenses by each individual during the year commencing 1st July, 1845, and ending on the 30th June, 1846."

Mr. ROBINSON seconded the motion.

After a brief conversational discussion, during which it was stated that these returns were only asked for in order to afford information to facilitate the proceedings of the Council next year, the motion was agreed to, and the address was ordered to be presented to the Governor by the Speaker, the Colonial Secretary, and the Colonial Treasurer.

MASTERS AND SERVANTS LAWS.

The House resolved itself into Committee on the Masters and Servants Laws Amendment Bill, and after going through a few of the clauses, the House was counted out.

House adjourned to three P.M. this day.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

SUPREME COURT.—Banco Sittings.

Tuesday.

Before their Honors the three Judges.

SALTING v. ABERCROMBIE.

A final decision was given in the above case, which had been argued on Monday, the opinion of the Court being, that the particulars of demand which had been furnished by the plaintiff were sufficient, and that the application for their amendment must be dismissed.

NATHAN v. DAWSON.

This was an action of trover, tried on the 18th February last, before Mr. Justice Dickinson, when a verdict was obtained for the plaintiff, and a nonsuit or new trial was now moved for upon various grounds.

In this action the plaintiff had sought to recover the value of several watches, and as the plaintiff was resident in England, these watches had in the first instance been consigned to a person named Wood, by whom they had been sold to the defendant, the latter giving bills for the amount, Subsequently, the defendant not being in a position to pay the bills, Wood obtained possession of the watches, in order to sell them and pay the said bills. After this they were sent back to Dawson, who then said he expected he should be able to sell them, and upon a demand for them being made by Mr. L. Spyer, the new agent for the plaintiff, the defendant refused to give them up until some arrangement was made with regard to the bills he had given, and which he required to be delivered up. The principal grounds of the present application were first, that there was no evidence of property in the plaintiff; and, secondly, that there was no proof of a sufficient agency in Spyer to make a demand.

Messrs. Broadhurst and Michie appeared in support of the motion, and contended that Wood being the only agent of whom the defendant had cognizance, the purchase made by him from the former was final and conclusive, and that the property was consequently vested in the defendant. It was also urged that although Spyer was said to be the agent of the consignor, it was not shown that he was such agent for the purpose of such a proceeding as this; and that there was no sufficient evidence of conversion.

Mr. Windeyer, on the part of the plaintiff, contended that the first sale by Wood was put an end to by the re-delivery of the watches, and that they had been merely sent back to Dawson for the purpose of selling them on commission, so that the latter would not be justified in claiming to retain them on account of having neglected to get his bills from Wood. He likewise argued that the evidence of Mr. Spyer having acted as agent in the matter of these watches, and of his having been required in this capacity by the defendant formed a sufficient proof of his authority.

Mr. Broadhurst having replied

The Court decided that a nonsuit must be entered, as there was no sufficient evidence to justify the Jury in arriving at the verdict they had done; the apparent fact being that instead of the first contract being rescinded by the redelivery of the watches, the plaintiff having by his agent reserved to himself the claim upon Dawson on the bills, as well as the chance of payment by the sale of some of the property, so that the defendant was justified in setting up his title to these watches upon account of the bills which he had given for them.

PENDRAY v. BRENNAN.

This was an action brought by the endorsee against the endorsor of a promissory note for £34, made by Michael Gaynor, and payable in July, 1843, but which, when at maturity, was dishonoured. The defendant had pleaded no notice of dishonour, and the Jury found a verdict for the plaintiff, for the amount claimed

Mr. Darvall now moved for a nonsuit, or a new trial, on the grounds set forth in an affidavit, which affidavit the Court held could not be read. The grounds of the application served on his Honor the Chief Justice, before whom the case had been tried, were—first, there was no evidence to go to the Jury that due notice of dishonour had been given; secondly, that his Honor had misdirected the Jury, by telling them that they might presume that notice of dishonour had been given, as defendant had said two months after the note was dishonoured that he then had received notice.

There was no evidence given to show that the notice of dishonour had reached the defendant in due time; and a number of cases were cited to show that nothing short of a direct admission of liability, or a distinct promise to pay, could be taken instead of proof of due notice of dishonour.

Mr Dowling was about to reply to Mr. Darvall's arguments, but the Court informed him it was not necessary, as in its opinion there was evidence to support the verdict, and discharged the rule.

BURNETT v. MITCHELL.

This was an action of assumpsit, for work and labour done; also, for goods sold and delivered. There had been three pleas, namely, non-assumpsit, a set off, and a plea of payment. At the trial, no evidence had been adduced of payment, but evidence had been given of the set off. The principal dispute had been on the general issue, as the defendant had admitted that the plaintiff had been in his employ, but alleged that it was merely out of charity that he had kept him, and adduced evidence to show that plaintiff had no engagement for wages. A new trial was now moved for, on the ground that the verdict was against evidence, against law, and that His Honor the Chief Justice had misdirected the Jury by leaving it to them to say which of several cases cited the present one most resembled; and also, by not telling them that if they believed the evidence of Mr. Murray Mitchell, son of the defendant, the plaintiff had no locus standi in Court, as he had distinctly sworn that the plaintiff had repeatedly told him what in effect amounted to his not having a contract for wages with his father at the time he, the plaintiff, was living on the premises, at Bargo, while the house, &c., were being built. A verdict had been returned for the plaintiff, damages, £75.

Mr. Windeyer now appeared for the defendant, Sir Thomas Mitchell, and supported the application, on the ground that no less than four witnesses for the defendant had all agreed in deposing that they had heard from the plaintiff's own lips that he had no agreement for wages with the defendant. Also, that the damages found (£75) were excessive, and that the services of the plaintiff were far two highly valued by the Jury, especially as although the plaintiff had been twenty months at the house at Bargo; it appeared in evidence that he only worked about two months out of every six.

Mr. Michie opposed the application, on the ground that there had been conflicting evidence given for the defendant, that although the plaintiff, his wife, and child, had been twenty months in the service of the defendant, yet the whole sum awarded by the Jury was only £75. He thought that there was evidence that the plaintiff was entitled to remuneration for the services rendered, and the amount for that purpose had been fixed by the Jury.

Mr. Windeyer, in reply, contended, that as no contract for wages had been made out, it was entirely in the option of Sir Thomas Mitchell to give what he might think proper, and it might be that he considered the plaintiff was fully remunerated by the cash, rations, stores, house-room, &c., which had been already afforded him, especially when it was borne in mind that he had not done his duty by attending to the defendant's interests during the absence of the latter in Sydney, but had left the place to take care of itself, and had allowed some property (wine) to be stolen; of his stealing, which the suspicions had been so strong, that he was sent to take his trial for it.

After consulting for a considerable time, the Chief Justice admitted that there had been misdirection in reference to one of the cases quoted at the trial; but he did not think that the notice respecting the misdirection was such as would entitled the defendant to come into Court for a new trial; but as he was of opinion that the verdict was against evidence, a new trial ought to be granted.

Mr. Justice Dickinson agreed in the opinion expressed by the Chief Justice; and although it was the right of the Judges to state to juries what their impressions were of the evidence, yet there was no principle of law which rendered it imperative on them to do so; and as he thought the verdict was against evidence, he agreed to a new trial being granted.

Mr. Justice a'Becket was of opinion, that there had been no misdirection on the part of the Chief Justice, and that the verdict ought to stand.

A new trial was then ordered, the costs of the first trial to abide the result of the second.

BLAMEY v. MALLARD.

Mr. Windeyer moved, that an order made by Mr. Justice Dickinson in this case, on the 16th June last, whereby certain costs were ordered to be paid by the defendant, might be made a rule of Court. Motion granted as made, without costs.

The Court adjourned at six o'clock P.M., till ten to-day.

GENERAL REMARKS.

Tuesday, 28—Calm morning; north-easterly breezes arose before noon, gradually increased, and blew very strong all the latter part of the day and night. No clouds, but much haziness P.M.

Wednesday, 29.—Calm and clear till about nine o'clock, when north-easterly breezes set in; freshened midday, and latter part blew very boisterously: vapoury cirrous clouds, and very hazy.

Thursday, 30.—Calm, hot, and sultry all the fore part; blue sky, and hazy cirrous clouds in zenith. Between one and two o'clock a somewhat remarkable halo or ring of prismatic colours was visible around the sun, so distinct as to resemble a circular rainbow; vapoury cirrous clouds were suspended in the circumjacent atmosphere, which also was rather hazy, and the sun's rays powerful. Latter part of the day, blew very fresh from northward.

Friday, 31.—A dead calm and cloudless sky till about nine, and continued quite a light wind till after two P.M., then blew fresh for a few hours, after which moderate rest of the day and night. A partial eclipse of the sun took place this morning; a very small segment of its (at first) upper (shifting in its progress to the southern) limb being obscured. The phenomenon commenced about 35 minutes past 7 and ended at 5 minutes past 10 (mean time).

Saturday, 1.—Calm and sultry all the forenoon; after two P.M. moderate breezes sprung up from south-east, and veered south towards sunset. Hazy, and latter part low scud passing over from southward. Night, light southwesterly airs.

Sunday, 2.—Calm till eight o'clock, and very hazy in western sky; after that hour an oppressively hot wind arose, and rapidly increased in force to a strong gale, and continued more or less violent (varying between northwest by north and north-west by west) through the whole day, the heat being more intense and suffocating than of almost any hot wind experienced here for a long time; the atmosphere was densely charged with a dingy tawny coloured haze, parched and dry. Between 12 and 12·30 the gale was perhaps most violent, proceeding from about north-west by west, but less hot than between 1 and 2, when it came from north of north-west, and the force of the gale was not so great. After five o'clock the gale moderated gradually in strength, but continued extremely sultry and oppressive the rest of the day and all through the night, when wind quite moderate.

Monday, 3.—Calm and sultry till near nine, then wind rose from north-west by west, and sky became gloomily overcast with clouds and thick dusty haze. After ten o'clock came to blow a heavy gale, and continued with little or no abatement till after one, veering to west about noon; between one and two a temporary lull occurred, then again commenced with somewhat increased violence from south of west and kept up for some time. Before sunset had moderated,—sky gradually cleared and air became cool. Night beautifully clear, and calm middle and latter parts.

Sneaking.—About one o'clock P.M. on Monday last, some person or persons unknown entered the house of William Olds, in Castlereagh-street North, and carried off a suit of men's wearing apparel, value £2. On Friday last, the following articles were stolen from the officers' quarters, at Mossman's Point, viz., two paddles, two oars, two masts, and two sets of boat sails, consisting of a gib, foresail, and mizen.

The Post Office.—A deputation from the South Australian Society waited on Colonel Maberly, Secretary to the Post Office, to represent the inconvenience suffered from the want of a direct communication with South Australia, via Sydney—letters so addressed being detained at Sydney, unless the postage onward be paid by some agent or friend of the writer, to whose care the letter must be directed. The deputation was informed that no steps could be at present taken to remedy this evil, as two commissioners had been appointed, and were now on their way to New South Wales, with instructions to report on the various systems adopted in the colonies of Australia, which have been, in this respect, independent of each other, and of the Post-office authorities at home, and to make arrangements for the introduction of some uniform plan. A year or two might be expected to elapse before the new arrangements would be completed.—South Australian News.

First Sale of this Season's Clip.—The first sale held this season of washed fleece wool, took place at Mr. Mort's Rooms, on Saturday last, and, we are informed, realised 17½d. per lb. Mr. Stubbs requests us to intimate, that complete catalogues of his extensive sale of ironmongery, &c., on the 6th instant, are now ready for delivery at the Mart, King-street.—Communicated.

House Robbery.—About eleven o'clock on Saturday morning, a man in a Government dress, and a blue cap, entered a hut on Mr. John Curr's premises at Newtown, in which were a girl and an infant. After having lit his pipe, the fellow proceeded to ransack the house, and took away a blue jacket, moleskin trousers, &c., and presented a pistol at the girl's head, threatening to shoot her if she gave an alarm. The girl describes the man as of fair complexion, and with a mark or pimple under one eye, and says she should recognise him. The man dropped a child's frock near the place where the brooms are usually cut by the Hyde Park Barrack convicts. The value of the property stolen is estimated at £1.

NEWS FROM THE INTERIOR.

(From our various Correspondents.)

PARRAMATTA.

A Long Run.—In the course of last week, a man named Arndale was brought before the Court, charged with being a runaway from an ironed gang since the year 1839. From the evidence of the Chief Constable, it appeared, that some few days previously, having been informed that Arndale was an absentee, he had him apprehended, and he was directed by the Bench to be forwarded to the Principal Superintendent of Convicts' Office for identification, and on his arrival there, the officials of that establishment stated him to be free, and he was accordingly discharged. Ryan still having reason to suspect that the man was a prisoner, pushed his enquiries at the office, and on a search into the records being instituted, it was discovered that Arndale was not free, he having been a runaway from an ironed gang, where he was serving a sentence of three years, since 1829, he was accordingly again apprehended, and forwarded to Sydney. It is rather singular, that this man has been a resident in this town for the last fourteen years, and as he has always borne a most excellent character, and been employed at one establishment, where he has held a situation of trust for upwards of five years, considerable compassion is felt for him, and it is rumoured that a strong petition will be presented to His Excellency in his behalf, praying the remission of the sentence he was serving, which, as it is a colonial one, it is believed the Governor has the power to grant. As the man has by a course of honest industry, and strict frugality, acquired some little property, which if he is compelled to undergo his sentence, his family, some of whom are of tender years, must be deprived of, as it will be confiscated to the Crown; the case, under the circumstances of his having for so many years pursued an honest course to procure his livelihood, is peculiarly distressing.

SHOCKING DEPRAVITY. — A young girl, named Phœbe Rose, a native of the colony, and who did not appear to have passed her 15th year, was on Monday convicted before the Bench of being a common prostitute. It came out in evidence, that this unfortunate creature had been twice previously in gaol for theft, and had been repeatedly cautioned by the police, before the present course was adopted, after her disorderly behaviour, night after night, in the streets. She was sentenced to one month's imprisonment in the gaol.

THE WEATHER.—Sunday was the hottest day experienced for some years past. The heat throughout the day, and for the greater part of the night, was painfully oppressive. From an early hour of the morning, until about nine at night, there were continual gusts of wind, which completely scorched what vegetation they passed over; and on Monday morning, the vegetables in several gardens on the Rocks looked crumbled to pieces the same as the leaves. It was impossible for any person to stir out from their houses without being dreadfully inconvenienced: as at times the wind appeared to carry with it small particles of hot sand. Judging from the description given of the East Indian simoom, there would seem to have been a very near approach to it on Sunday.

FOREIGN NEWS

STATE OF TRADE.

(From the Times, July 7.)

Within the last few days our market has exhibited considerable buoyancy, and a large amount of business has been done at the full prices current of last week: indeed, both in yarns and goods, some extensive contracts have been made to deliver. The commercial news from India is also encouraging, and prints, in particular, are in good request there. Great preparations are making for the autumn, and we doubt not but we shall have a good autumn trade, for everything appears to favour us. We learn from every quarter that the reckless gambling is still going on in the share market. A day, and, we fear, not a very far distant one, of rapid reckoning is approaching, for no same man can doubt for a moment that shares in one half of the companies are too high; indeed, it is our opinion, that they are merely at all artificial price. We hope men of capital will cease to encourage the delusive speculations, which will, in the end, cause ruin to hundreds. The shares of the 62½ may be quoted 4s. 10½d. to 5s. 3d.; the 37½, 1s. 6d. to 6s.—Manchester Advertiser.

BIRMINGHAM, Monday.—There has been rather less doing in the flannel market to-day than on the preceding Monday; manufacturers are wanting more money for their pieces, and buyers are not willing to give an advance before the 25th November, by which time business to be transacted at present rates of wool is rather on the advance, and some pieces are very scarce.—BRADFORD, Thursday.—Wool.—The business doing is not extensive. The spinners cannot give the prices sought for combing wools of fine staple. The same supply in the market and the high prices demanded by the growers preclude all hope of any immediate decline. New brokes and noils are also inquired for, the stocks being low, and command high prices, which may be accounted for by the unusual operations of the spinning trade. Yarn.—We cannot report any change from last week, nothing has transpired that will in any way improve the state of the spinner. There is a great deal of idle machinery, and whilst the relative price of yarn and wool continues at two extremes, there is no doubt that the business will continue to be limited. Piece.—The demand is, in point of extent, is tolerably satisfactory, yet there is not that buoyancy usually apparent at this season of the year, and although yarns are so extremely low, yet the price of goods offers no inducement for extended operations.—Bradford Observer.

LEEDS.—The state of trade in this district continues good, and although the amount of business transacted on cloth halls on Saturday and Tuesday last was not to a great extent, many manufacturers are making to meet the home and foreign trade at the warehouses every week. Several large parcels of light fancy goods, valued for the markets of India and China, have been dispatched for shipment. The principal articles were beavers, tweeds, fancy cloakings, and doeskins; and, stocks being low, prices continue firm, but no advance.—HUDDERSFIELD.—Our market was well attended by buyers on Tuesday, and large purchases, at full prices, were made. Plains and kerseys were more sought after than they have been for some time past. A good autumn trade is confidently anticipated.—ROCHDALE.—We have had two exceedingly fine market days this week in blankets suitable for the Spanish trade. Prices may be quoted a shade higher.—Manchester Examiner.

LIVERPOOL.—There is a fair amount of business doing. Prices are firm with an improving tendency.—Leicester Mercury.

NOTTINGHAM.—The condition of the wrought hosiery trade is by no means amended; still we cannot but think there is a slight change for the better in the last few days. The cut-up and drop-off cotton hose branches are still very much depressed, and frames are standing in considerable numbers. The drawer branch is rather improved, but we think it is not worse than it has been for the last month. The silk glove and silk hosiery trade is very brisk. The fancy weavers, both of the plain and the cotton warp lace trades are extremely busy, and frames are rapidly stopping. The silk trade is much better than the cotton, if we except the fancy articles, which are in a most lamentable state as regards demand.—Nottingham Journal.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

SPAIN.

Spanish papers state that despatches had been sent to the Spanish Government, having for their object to induce the Queen to withhold from Don Carlos passports to leave Bourges. The arrest of Cabrera, while meditating an entry into Spain, with the undoubted intention of re-kindling civil war, has united all the journals in condemnation of the Carlists. Several Carlist placards were torn down in Pamplona, and which are described to be of the most bigoted and intolerant character. The Clamor Publico asserts, that it has reason to know that the liberty of the press is to be abolished by an arbitrary decree.

Letters from Madrid state, the most extraordinary and alarming reports are in circulation concerning Barcelona. Malaga, Alicante, Saragossa, and Valadolid; and others, that the Queen, Narvaez, and the Court have been compelled to take refuge in the fortress of Figueras, and that the Count de Montemolin has entered Barcelona; again, that a Republican movement had broken out at Badajos and Ciudad Real.

SWITZERLAND.

M. Steiger has escaped from the prison of Lucerne. He arrived at Bonnetellen, accompanied by two Lucerne officers and some friends who had favoured his escape. He has since entered Zurich in the midst of general enthusiasm. It appears he was provided with a uniform of the Landwehr, and in this costume passed in company with the others out of Lucerne, entered a carriage in the town, and passed the frontiers.

TURKEY.

The Gazette states that the ambassadors of the great powers had approved of the measures adopted by the Porte for the tranquillization of Syria.

Hafiz Pasha has accused the Emir Bechir of having fomented these disturbances, for which the Porte has ordered him into exile.

Sir Stratford Canning was labouring to obtain firmans in favour of the Protestant Church of Jerusalem.

BRAZIL.

The American journals brought by the Cambridge bring advices from Rio Janeiro and Rio Grande to the 1st of April. It is said that Mr. Gore Ousley had arrived at Rio, on his way to the Plata, and that he had succeeded to obtain the co-operation of Brazil to enable him to open the communication with Paraguay, by way of the Parana, to British commerce. Mr. Ousley had also passed the large outward-bound American packet-ship the St. James. The royal yacht having proceeded to the eastward, as far as the Vernon, now turned round and passed back between the line of ships. When opposite the St. Vincent, all the squadron again hoisted forth another royal salute, after which the royal yacht put on full speed, and returned to Cowes.

FASHIONS FOR JULY.

HATS, shaded, are of the latest fashions. They are composed of a quantity of gauze folds, the colours being shaded across, from a very light hue to the darkest shade. For instance, upon a citron-coloured one, the first is of the palest straw colour, the deepest and last fold being of the hue of the marigold, the intermediate folds being of the graduated shades.

WALKING DRESSES.—Some of the most fashionable are made of mousseline, either in white or coloured. These mousselines de soie are in great request, and are generally made up after the following fashion:—The corsage demi-basque, and with facings falling back à ceinture; the sleeves à la Russe, the skirt trimmed with two broad volants, or deep flounces.

Evening or dinner dresses are principally composed of the gros grain blue, mauve, or verdant green, handsomely trimmed with two flounces of magnificent broad black lace, put on nearly plain, and of a gothic kind of pattern. The berthe worn over the corsage is of the same description of lace, and sufficiently deep to fall a little below the waist, and just over the front of the arms.

PALETOTS.—Several of our first-rate modistes are commencing to bring forth this style of overall dress: they are denominated the paletot d'été, and are made entirely of black and white lace. We very much doubt their becoming universal, being not only very expensive, but mostly intended for carriage or afternoon dress.

MANTELETS.—A very fanciful looking one, and one with which our noblesse are much pleased, has just appeared, composed of white crepe glissant upon a pink satin. The ends of this mantelet are rounded at the bottom, the pelerine très ample, and over each arm is a seam, by the aid of which the ends are pulled to the top of the waist, and their junction with the pelerine produces a kind of demi-manche, the whole of the mantelet being encircled with a pink satin ribbon, fringed with pink, having in the centre a very narrow white stripe, the pelerine being ornamented with three rows of this ribbon, ruche à la vieille. Those intended for promenade are made in shot and glacé silks, such as the following one: a reflets, blue and pink, formed deep, and rounded at the back, cut very sloping over the top of the shoulders, descending down the front in long square ends, and trimmed upon the back with three volants, edged with a fringe, terminating in a point at the bend of the arm; laces are also much used for the trimming of these kind of mantelets, they are generally put on as a kind of frilling round the two capes or pelerines, and plain upon the front part of the ends; others are decorated with three rows of fringe à la fontaque, or with gauze ribbons, forming round plaits.

CAPS.—Nothing can equal the coquettish and fascinating appearance of the caps of the present day; pink and blue are the colours always most in vogue, notwithstanding which, we see them trimmed with ribbons of a darker hue, such as deep blue, green, groseille, and violet; some very distinguished looking ones we have remarked decorated with trimmings of velvet.

MORNING DRESSES are commencing to be quite recherché in their appearance. For instance, nothing can be more elegant than a dress composed of the tissu Memphis, decorated with four flounces, the corsage having pointed facings or revers turning back and a ceinture; sleeves à l'ottomane, having under ones of some light material. The tissu Memphis is now in great favour, and is only made in light colours, plain or in stripes, plaids, or semé de pois. For home costumes barèges and tartalan muslins are preferred, the former in pretty shaded stripes, the blouse body and the skirt perfectly simple; while those in pink tartalan are made with the Grecian body, and the skirt ornamented with four broad folds. The sleeves are generally made the same width at the top as at the wrist, where they are fulled into a band of sufficient width to allow of a trimming composed of three rows of lace, put on so as to touch one another, and very slightly fulled.

FASHIONABLE COLOURS for the present month are principally pink, blue, tourterelle, white, every shade of green, poussière, lilacs, and grey. Mixed colours are still much in vogue; they are generally of the most opposite hue, such as a Nankin colour, and red, pink, and green.

DREADFUL CONFLICT AND LOSS OF LIFE.—An extraordinary edition of the Cork Reporter brings intelligence of a dreadful conflict between the police and peasantry, at a place called Ballinhassing, about seven miles south of the City of Cork. Eight of the country people were shot dead, and a great number, it is supposed, are dreadfully wounded. The details are given as follows in a private letter from Ballinhassing, Tuesday morning:—"I have been for the last seven or eight hours witnessing scenes of such an agonising and heart-rending nature, that I almost despair of being enabled to convey any idea of their horror in the hasty notice I send you. There is an annual fair held in the village of Ballinhassing, on 30th June, which is usually well attended by all the farmers and people in that district, and it is, I believe, customary to send a small police force to the fair in order to keep order. This precaution was taken yesterday; but unfortunately, not content with either with the prudence or moderation which the discharge of so responsible a duty demanded. About half-past seven when the business of the fair had concluded, a number of persons remained near the fair field and about the village, the great majority being sober and peaceable. A party of police 19 in number, under the command of Mr. Kelly, sub-inspector at Kinsale, were stationed near the crossroad. At one side is a public-house, kept by a person named Calaghan, and at the other side of the road, running parallel with it, is a house used as a dispensary. Two persons in the crowd, Sullivan and Neale, began to quarrel, and others having interfered—whether as combatants or peace-makers, I cannot ascertain—the police felt it their duty to arrest one of the principals, Sullivan, and immediately on their doing so, one or two mischievous persons called out in Irish, 'Don't let him go with them.' Symptoms of a disposition to rescue Sullivan having thus become perceptible, the police retired with their prisoner to the dispensary—the door of that edifice was not on the hinges, but it was laid to. Here some stone-throwing occurred. To what extent the rioting was carried on in front, at this moment, I cannot say, but some shots having been fired, a number of the country people got into a yard behind the dispensary, and were throwing stones on the roof, until they had smashed it in two or three places. The police, in the mean time, had been ordered to load, and very soon after they had got into the dispensary, they fired from the window and door with deadly effect. There was no magistrate present; no riot act read; no warning, as I am positively informed, to the people to desist; no attempt made to disperse them by a bayonet charge, or a volley of blank cartridge. At the first fire several fell, and the police then came out; some of them fired again, and again returned: and the whole party once again rushed out, and the people having at this time run in all directions, they turned up by the bridge in the direction of their barracks. When they went from the dispensary, a small body of the people followed them, and though no attack was, as I can learn, then attempted, one or two of the police turned round, and again fired with the same aim and effect (firing simultaneously on previous proceedings. I shall now come to the sad spectacle which presented itself on my arrival at the village. Having received intimation in Cork, about twelve o'clock at night, of what had occurred, I proceeded to the locality, in company with Dr. Everard. The first house we entered, a wretched hovel near the bridge, presented a horrid sight. On a heap of potatoes in the corner, resting on the lap of an aged woman, whose anguish seemed too deep and intense for utterance, lay the body of a fine athletic man, his clothes open, and every part covered with blood; three or four women were collected about, a group of men surrounding him, and only a hollow moan from the women occasionally broke the silence of the house of mourning. With some difficulty I made my for the door, and when he held the candle to his ghastly features and looked for a moment on the last convulsive agony, he saw that his end was come. In less than a minute he had ceased to exist. The name of the deceased was Coghlan; he was a small farmer, and had left, besides his aged mother, a wife, and one child to mourn his late. The bullet entered at his back, and passing through the lungs, came out at the side. We then hastened to the nearest place where it was intimated that one of the sufferers lay, and in a little house in the village, stretched on the earthern floor, we found a fine young man, named John Walsh, from Carrigaline, aged 24. His right leg was literally shivered to bits; it had been hastily dressed, but upon opening the bandage several large splinters of bone came awry. It was dressed again, as well as time and circumstances would permit, and the poor sufferer expressed his gratitude over and over for the relief he was afforded. The doctor at once recommended that he should be removed into Cork to the infirmary, where amputation of the limb should take place, as the only chance of saving his life. He was unmarried, but I was informed had a young family of brothers and sisters, who were mainly dependent on his labours. From this we proceeded with all expedition to Adamstown, where some of the most dangerous cases had been removed to their own houses. At the house of Maurice Corkran, whom we found lying on a bed, almost in the agonies of death, his wife and four young children were screaming at the bed-side, and a crowd of neighbours blocked up the single apartment of his wretched habitation. On examining him, the doctor was of opinion that his case was quite hopeless. The bullet had entered between the eighth and ninth rib, and as well as could be ascertained, passing through the abdominal viscera, came out at the other side. He was throwing up blood in vast quantities, and was fast sinking. The doctor having done all that he thought advisable for the poor sufferer, we proceeded about half a mile further, where we found the 4th pensary, and were throwing stones on the roof, until they had smashed it in two or three places. The police, in the mean time, had been ordered to load, and very soon after they had got into the dispensary, they fired from the window and door with deadly effect. ... no more sacred task than assisting in forming the moral and intellectual character of a new people; it is the surest and best kind of missionary labour. I sometimes think that if the government would make me a bishop, or principal of a college or school, or both together, in such a place as Van Diemen's Land, and during your government, I could be tempted to emigrate with all my family for good and all."—The late Dr. Arnold, of Rugby, in a Letter to Sir John Franklin, while Governor of Van Diemen's Land.

THE SPHYNX.—Some little time after the return of the British troops from Egypt, the Government decided on granting, as a decoration to such of the regiments as had distinguished themselves in that expedition, the privilege of wearing a small figure of a sphynx in their caps. This being rumoured in an Irish regiment, one of the men asked his officer, "Please your honor, what the devil is a sphynx?"—"Sphynx," replied the officer, "why, a sphynx is a monster, man." "A Munster Man!" rejoined the soldier, "by my sowl, and I thought it came from Connaught."

ODDS AND ENDS.—[From late papers.]—One of the best and most substantial cotton factories in the United States has recently been erected at Cincinnati. The population of the whole earth is said to be 1100 millions.—The Weser Gazette contains a letter from Bremen, which states, that during the year 1844 the emigration from the free towns had considerably increased. There had been in all 43,661 emigrants, the greatest number of whom proceeded to the United States and South America.—The Silesian Gazette says that the states of Prussia, Posen, Silesia, and of the Rhine pronounced, either unanimously or by a great majority, in favour of the petitions for the liberty of the press.—A letter from Leipsic states that the Ministry refused Messrs. Willesford," lately tried at Exeter, Mr. Justice Coleridge, in summing up, said that he believed the love-letters of the cleverest men never did much credit to their heads.—Capt. Denham, R.N., is about to proceed in the Aron steamer (now at Woolwich) to the southern part of the coast of Africa, in order to complete the survey which had been carried on by Capt. Owen.—A nabob, in a severe fit of the gout, told his physician he was suffering the pains of the damned. "What, already?" asked the doctor.—Swift observed that the two maxims of a great man at Court are—always to keep his countenance, and never to keep his word.—Cardinal Mazarin said of the president of Coigneux—"He is so good a judge that he is enraged at not being able to condemn both parties."—Lord Castlereagh has been appointed Lord Lieutenant of the county of Down.—Monmouth-street, named after the unfortunate son of Charles II., so well known from its being the residence of the purveyors of second-hand habiliments, has had its name changed to Dudley-street. Petticoat-lane, at the East-end, has in a similar way been transferred to the more euphonious sound of Middlesex-street.—At the close of the reign of Napoleon the number of persons who had received the Cross of the Legion of Honour was 30,747; at present it amounts to 49,714, or something more than a third additional.—Mr. R.
